MAINE SHIPYARDS AGAIN BUSY

The 100th fishing boat built in Maine shipyards since 1934—a streamlined, all steel, quarter million dollar thoroughbred—slipped down the ways at the Bath Iron Works last Thursday afternoon, to send the total three year value of this industry's output skyrocketing over the $7,000,000 mark. Christened "Villanova" and built to join the offshore trawler fleet of the F. J. O'Hara Company of Boston she was accorded the honors due her in rounding out this modern record which heralds the return to importance of a proud Maine industry.

Somewhat of a showman himself Mr. O'Hara gave the craft a good sendoff with a special trainload of Boston folks, a parade of Boy Scouts and bands, and topping off the festivities by having his five year old son Francis Jr. smash a bottle of sparkling champagne over the rugged bow. State officials were on hand to give the affair "official" recognition in honor of this one hundredth tribute to the ability of Maine boatbuilders.

Maine Development Commission officials who compiled the statistics expressed themselves as "much pleased" with the records which show that boat building is coming back. A large number of the fishing boats launched over the three year period were built for out of state firms and it is estimated that "at least" $5,000,000 in "new money" has been brought into the hands of Maine workmen and industry.

The Bath Iron Works has built only steel boats and they have cost on an average of $200,000 each. Many smaller yards have been turning out 40 to 50 foot wooden druggers which have averaged around $40,000 each. There have been many $15,000 to $20,000 cost fishing boats and numerous smaller craft costing from $500 up to $10,000.

MAN INJURED ON SONGO ROAD

While working on the Songo Pond road construction last Friday Ed Billings of East Bethel was severely cut on the head when struck by a car driven by John W. Deegan. The wound required six stitches to close.

Deegan was brought before Trial Justice Elmer C. Allen Monday on a charge of reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs. The fine was suspended on payment of the costs.

DOROTHY IRENE HUTCHINSON

Miss Dorothy Irene Hutchinson passed away Thursday, Nov. 21, at 2 p. m. at the C. M. G. Hospital, Lewiston, where she had been seriously ill for the past four weeks. She suffered much but bore her sufferings with fortitude and courage, always greeting her friends and loved ones with a smile and a cheery word.

She was the only daughter of Harry and Hattie Foster Hutchinson and was born at Bethel May 9, 1917. She was a graduate of Gould Academy in the class of 1935 and attended Shaw's Business College at Portland for two years.

She was a member of the S. of U. V. Auxiliary, serving as an officer of the order for several years, always giving of her time and service in a cheerful manner. She was an attendant of the Methodist Church and Sunday School. She was one who possessed a kindly and friendly spirit, cheerful and courageous, making many friends in her home town and wherever she went.

To her parents she had always given, and from them received, a perfect devotion. While away at college she always looked forward with the greatest of pleasure to the week end visits to the home she loved so well.

She is survived by her parents; one brother, Earle Hutchinson; her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Florence Douglass and Mrs. William Bryant; one uncle, William Hutchinson; five cousins, Myron Bryant, Arthur Dudley, Mrs. Ethlyn Vashaw, Alton and Erwin Hutchinson, besides a very special friend, Earle Bean.

The beautiful and impressive funeral service was held at Greenleaf's Funeral Home, amid a profusion of flowers. Silent messages were they, testifying to the love and esteem of her who has left us, and conveying comfort and sympathy to those bereft. The service conducted by Dr. S. S. Greenleaf was very largely attended. The local Auxiliary members and her classmates attended in a body, also there were present several from the S. of U. V. Auxiliaries at Portland and South Paris.

Rev. P. J. Clifford was the officiating clergyman, speaking words of comfort to the bereaved family and friends. The pall bearers were four classmates, Alfred Taylor, Frederick McMillin, Charles Smith, and Edgar Coolidge. Interment was in Riverside Cemetery.

Friends from out of town attending the service were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jose, Mrs. Alice Brown and Harry Towle, Portland; Mrs. Ray Frost and Mrs. Rita Lawrence, So. Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bryant and George Bryant, Flagstaff; Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Brown, South Paris; Harold Chase, Miss Mildred Chase, Skowhegan, Mrs. Charles Morse, Dixfield; Mrs. Stacia Hammond, Rockland; Mr. and Mrs. Angus Frazer, Laurence Robertson, Gilead.

Gordon Merrill appeared before Trial Justice Allen Wednesday on complaint of Deputy Game Warden French, charged with illegal trapping. He was assessed a fine of $25 and costs.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brown and son spent several days this week in Milton, Mass.

Williamson Shot While Guiding

Harry Williamson, a registered guide, of Upton was instantly killed last Thursday afternoon when shot through the head, Charles D. Hiltferty, 69, of Westfield, N. J., was held on a manslaughter charge and gave $1,000 bail for appearance before the grand jury at the November term of court. Williamson was guiding Hiltferty and had gone ahead to drive back game. His return through a nearby thicket was not anticipated and, stooped in the brush, he was mistaken for a bear.

Mr. Williamson was born in Newry, April 11, 1895, the son of Frank and Bertha Swan Williamson. He married Miss Esther Frost of Newry and four children were born to them. For several years they lived on Sunday River, moving to Upton about 10 years ago.

He is survived by his wife; three children, Phyllis, Richard and Doris of Upton; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williamson of Bethel; and a brother, Earl Williamson of Newry.

Funeral services were held at the Greenleaf funeral home, Saturday afternoon, Rev. P. J. Clifford officiating. Interment was in the Sunday River cemetery.

Gould Eleven Wins Final Games

Gould Academy came from behind again Wednesday to trounce Mexico High in fine fashion 20-7. The winners seemed to play better and better ball as the game grew older, until in the last period they smeared everything the Pintos had to offer and crashed over for two touchdowns and place-kicked two points.

The winners were clearly the better team and only for a rather freakish play would have kept their goal line uncrossed as they have in all but one game.

Gould opened up with a 50 yard touchdown drive with Baker crashing over for six points. The place-kick was missed and Gould led 6-0. But the lead was short lived as Mexico ran the kick-off back 85 yards to score. They made the extra point good on a pass and assumed a 7-6 lead.

The teams battled on even terms during the second period and the half ended Mexico 7—Gould 6.

The second half was all for Gould. Outplaying Mexico in all departments the locals finally slipped over two more touchdowns and Johnson made both place-kicks good giving Gould a fine victory 20-7.

The entire Gould team deserves praise in their final victory. However Brown's and Robertson's sensational runs were outstanding while Thurston's and Holt's defensive work stood out above the rest. Johnson did some fine punting and heaved two nice passes while Thurston's final kick-off was a beauty, going into the end zone for a touch back.

For Mexico the entire center of the line from tackle to tackle played great ball while Downs was the offensive star.

Gould 14--South Paris 6

South Paris High School came to Bethel last Saturday with an undefeated record but went home on the short end of a 14 to 6 score. Except for a brief lapse in the early minutes of the game Gould showed itself to be the best team. South Paris scored first and led 6 to 0 but Gould came back in the second period to tie the score and then to go out in front on a safety. The score at half time was Gould 8--South Paris 6.

With this slim lead the Gould eleven went onto the field determined to hold their margin of victory. The game however was put on the platter, so to speak, when on a perfect fake play Robertson scampered 55 yards without a hand being laid on him. In fact no South Paris player knew where the ball was until Robertson had reached the safety man. Then a wild race ensued in which Eddy crossed the finish line ahead of his competitors. Thus ended the game 14-6.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

STORY TELLING

It's the story-telling picture that carries real human interest appeal.

ALMOST all of us have had the experience of calling on friends who persist in getting out their collection of snapshots and parading them before the eyes of their defenseless guests.

Now please bear in mind that I harbor no thoughts of this practice as being a breach of social etiquette. On the contrary, I am for it. But—there are many kinds and classes of snapshots. There are, for instance, the snapshots that are very good as far as exposure, sharpness and composition are concerned but with practically no human interest appeal. We can class these as record pictures.

Have you ever heard of story-telling snapshots? I'll wager that many of you haven't. For that reason this week's Snapshot Guild will be devoted to story-telling pictures.

From the cradle to the grave we hear stories—and like them. All through our lives we retain our interest in story-illustrations. It is this appeal that takes us to the movies and causes us to look through the pages of daily newspapers and magazines for pictures that tell stories of human activities.

When it comes to taking snapshots, however, so many seem to forget about story-telling subjects. "Say pick up their cameras and just shoot. There is a better way to take pictures."

There is a vast difference between a close-up view of a person and a story-telling picture. A close-up—whether head-and-shoulder, three-quarters or full length—is more or less a record picture to show the image of the person photographed, but it does not tell a story. You may take a picture of Peggy standing looking at the camera. A fine picture, no doubt, bearing all the earmarks of good photography properly exposed and a good example of composition, but still a record-type snapshot. Let Peggy be pictured taking the leaves and you have a story-telling human interest snapshot. Today as you're glancing through the newspaper, notice for yourself whether record pictures of people looking at the camera or story-telling pictures of people doing things interest and please you more.

Before taking a picture give it a little thought and if it is to be a snapshot of an individual, have him doing something and not staring at the camera, simulating a victim of amnesia.

I don't want to seem to lecture but I do want to impress upon you the importance of giving serious thought to your picture taking. If you will keep this story-telling idea foremost in your mind when you take your next pictures, I am sure they will be more interesting to you and your friends.

An Electric Washing Machine Saves Labor, Time and Money

As a piece of swing music, "The Wash Day Blues" might be extremely popular. But wash day itself always is one of the most wearisome and unwelcome of farm chores for those who do their laundry work by old-fashioned hand methods. However, to the farm wife who uses a modern electric washing machine with power wringer it scarcely interrupts the routine of her daily housework.

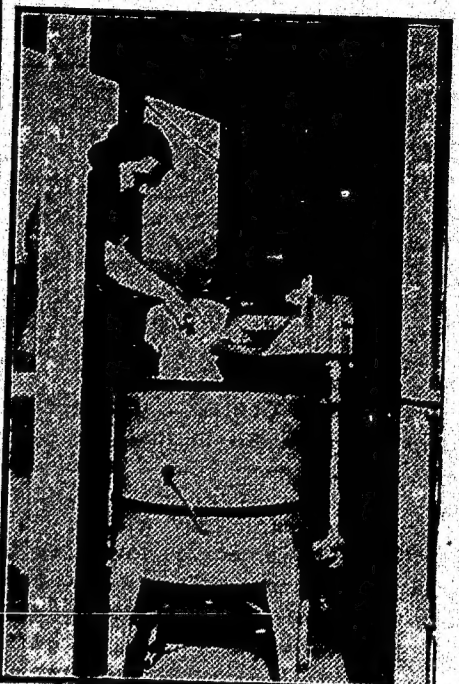

The power-driven washing machine is so common that no one need be told of its many advantages. But the electric washer, by far the most economical and satisfactory, still is used in comparatively few of the farm homes where current is available.

Reliable studies indicate that the farm wife spends approximately 6% of her working time in washing, and 4% in ironing, the weekly laundry. At a conservative estimate, with an electric machine the washing time can be reduced by 20% and, simultaneously, the weight of clothes washed can be increased by a like percentage.

The initial cost of a good electric washing machine with power wringer varies from about $50 to $150. In general, the higher the price the longer the life of the machine and the more reliable and efficient its operation. To arrive at a fair estimate of the cost of doing the family wash, the items of depreciation, repairs and interest on investment must be included. Depending upon the original cost of the washing equipment, these will total between $14 and $21 per year or 27 to 40 cents per wash day.

Operating costs will vary with the nature of the wash and the season of the year—within limits, they remain fairly constant regardless of the size of the family. Power consumption may run from 0.6 to 2 kilowatt-hours each wash day or, at the five cent rate, from three to ten cents, with the average approaching the lower figure. It must be remembered that it does not pay to economize too greatly in the use of electricity, as within wide limits, the more one uses it the lower is the unit cost.

It is fair to estimate the cost of soap, hot water and other supplies at 30 cents for each wash day, thus bringing the total cost to from 60 to 80 cents. Note that this does not include ironing, nor is any allowance made for the value of the housewife's time. These items will be treated in a later story.

Washing with a hand-powered machine or scrubbing board and tub costs only about 40 cents each wash day. But what woman, if she had the choice, would not spend from 20 to 40 cents to change "Blue Monday" to "Sunny Monday"?

ROADS AND RURAL MAIL

The unpretentious mail box on its post by the side of the road symbolizes the romance of letter writing. Ever since frontier days letters have been the wings of American civilization and the voice of its progress. Letters have helped build good citizenship. They have stimulated national good will. They have experienced every method of travel from pony express and stage coach to streamlined train and plane. Ever since the first white settlements were established on the shores of the New World, letters have been dependent on roads to carry them to their destinations.

The roadside mail box is likewise a symbol of the unselfish service of 34,000 rural letter carriers who daily travel, rain or shine, over 1,370,000 miles of the highways and byways of rural America, serving 6,950,000 families and carrying the mail to more than 25,000,000 expectant individuals.

I had the happy privilege of addressing the recent 34th annual convention of the National Rural Letter Carriers Association in New Orleans. The emblem of this splendid organization incorporates the horse and buggy and indicates the necessity of roads to the job of carrying the mail. The emblem does not, however, indicate the willingness of the letter carriers of today to put up with the horse-and-buggy roads of yesterday. Horse-and-buggy roads are things of the past in America and the 15-mile-an-hour-highway of a few years ago has been outmoded. The delivery of rural mail today is a mechanized and speedier service. A familiar trail was sufficient to the needs of the pony express rider of pioneer days, but the rural letter carrier today drives a motor vehicle and all-weather roads, therefore, become necessary to the proper delivery of mail in any kind of weather. There can be no excuse for conditions that existed during the past few winters. Rural carriers were compelled in many places to go back to the horse and buggy, to the use of sledges and sometimes had to go on foot to get the mail delivered.

The members of the National Letter Carriers Association are intensely interested in the improvement of the roads on which they spend the best part of their lives. They adopted a resolution at their New Orleans meeting favoring the earmarking of at least 25% of all federal highway money for the construction and maintenance of rural route roads that are not part of existing main or secondary highways. These letter carriers and the rural population they daily serve are looking forward to and should be granted the improvement of farm-to-market roads. While these people know that some scattered improvements have been made in rural road conditions, they realize that rural communities have received fewer good-road benefits than any other subdivision of our population.

News from the political, industrial and educational centers of our civilization is essential to the progress of rural America. The farmer, the cross-roads merchant, the village teacher, the small town preacher, lawyer and doctor, all are vitally concerned with city, state and national legislation; with current questions of national and international importance. The rural community inhabitant has a keen desire to keep in touch with the "outside" world. He has come to depend on the rural free delivery and good roads to bring him the information contained within letters and the pages of his community newspaper to keep him posted on the progress of our great country. Prices, too, are as vital to him as to the broker in Wall Street. The marketability and sales value of his produce determine his future prosperity. Good roads are an absolute necessity to the expansion of daily mail service to the rural communities. Good roads bring encouraging news and a rightful share of the nation's progress to even the most isolated back-country spots. Our highways have often been called the arteries of America. I like to think of the rural letter carriers as the life blood flowing through those arteries, bringing new vitality to rural America.

From stage-coach days down to the present time the delivery of mail to the rural sections of the United States has constantly improved and always in proportion to the improved condition of the road over which the mail travels.

Several people in the community gave Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Emmons a wedding surprise shower last Thursday evening. There were 38 present. They received many gifts which were placed in a basket beautifully decorated with orange and black crepe paper and Halloween pictures. Some of the gifts were also wrapped in Halloween paper. They had a beautiful wedding cake with a miniature bride and groom on top. After the gifts were unwrapped and refreshments of cake, ice cream and candy were served, they all enjoyed group singing around the piano.

Friday evening the school had a Halloween party at the Town Hall. The hall was decorated with crepe paper, Jack-o-lanterns, pumpkins and corn stalks. Candy, popcorn, doughnuts and punch were on sale, also the children enjoyed fortunes. The children took part in contests and games during the evening. Prizes were given for the best costumes.

Night Watchman—All the Year
Enforced Traffic RulesTHREE OUNCES OF WHISKEY MAKES A DRUNKEN DRIVER

How much whiskey makes an unsafe driver? Two jiggers! Dr.
Rollo N. Harger, professor of biochemistry and toxicology at Indiana University, gave that estimate to highway traffic experts at the National Safety Congress.

Based on studies made with a new type "chemical breath smeller" with which he seeks to replace the "policeman's nose test," Dr.
Harger said that three ounces of whiskey was sufficient to fog the brain and render an auto mobile driver unsafe. This moderate amount of liquor increases an individual's reaction time—the time required before muscles obey the orders of the brain. Thus it appears that we need a new definition of intoxication in its relation to the operation of an automobile.
To a person accustomed to alcohol, two or three drinks may produce no visible effect. The driver may seem sober in speech, actions and appearance. That same driver, turned loose on the highway with a car, is a menace to life and property.

Police reports from various representative states indicate that liquor is a definitely proven factor in 10 to 20% of automobile accidents involving fatalities and serious injuries. It is certain that liquor is an unseen factor in a much higher proportion of cases—cases where it is impossible to obtain legal proof of drinking.

One basic rule of safe driving must be, "Never operate your car after you have taken any liquor whatever, even though it be but a glass or two of beer." Alcohol and gasoline must be kept far apart.
The citizen who drives his car after a few cocktails, in the belief that he is perfectly sober, is basically as serious a public menace as the roaring drunk who goes car-reening down the streets and highways.

Dr. Harger describes successful experiments that have been made in developing chemical tests for intoxication. Every police department should keep up with the march of the times and take advantage of the new tests and machines that eliminate the human element and make the determination of intoxication a scientific fact. Eliminate the drinking driver and we will have taken a long step toward highway safety.

HELPING THE MOUNTAIN CLIMBER

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Falls, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual, National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

President Roosevelt's speech on world affairs, in which he castigated dictatorships and proposed a virtual quarantine of bellicose powers, is perhaps the most important international event of many months. It was greeted with almost unanimous praise in this country, by papers of all political affiliations.
It was direct, aggressive and, for the head of a government, extremely daring. In the view of the experts, it is believed certain that the British and possibly the French foreign offices were consulted before the speech was made, and that the plan of action laid down by the President is approved by the three great democracies of the world.

Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion is as simple as it is revolutionary. In effect, he said that it might be necessary to place a towering commercial wall around the nations which are responsible for today's war scars and war prospects. Peaceful nations would refuse to export to these countries, and they would not import from them. Little by little, as supplies on hand dwindled, the belligerent powers would find themselves lacking in the raw and finished materials which are essential to life both in peace and war.
Thus, faced with want and privations, they would find it impossible to pursue their dream of conquest.

The President did not mention any country by name. But it was obvious that he was referring to three powers: Japan, Italy, Germany. Italy has taken over Abyssinia, in disregard of all treaties, by armed force. Japan is attempting to achieve a similar victory in rich North China. And Germany, with Hitler as its spokesman, makes no secret of the fact that it regards colonial expansion as essential.

The world effect of such a declaration of potential policy would have been nowhere near as great had it come from the head of any other country. We are remote from all other major powers. We are peacefully inclined. We are one of the two nations which are economically self-contained—that is which possess within their territorial borders resources needed to provide every necessity and most of the luxuries of modern life. And, for the past few years, we have been the great question mark in international affairs—we have moved slowly, said little and kept aloof from participation in world events.

The President's attitude, roughly described, is that we could not escape being involved in a major war, that we must therefore cooperate to prevent war. He gave approval to American cooperation with the League of Nations—which, significantly, is shunned by Germany, Italy and Japan. Out of this has come the belief that in the immediately future the world will be divided into two camps—the democracies and the dictatorships. On the side of the democracies there will also be the only dictatorship which is economically self-sufficient—Russia.

The strength of an alliance between the democracies and the U.
S.S.R. is impossible to exaggerate.
From either the economic or military standpoint, they are immen-sely superior to the dictatorships.
Japan, Italy and Germany must import tremendous quantities of the basic commodities in order to exist.
They must export their own specialties, such as silk and olive oil and wine, in order to obtain foreign credits. Gose the world's markets to them, and at the same time forbid them to buy in the democracies, and they would be ruined. And, should they elect to fight, every recognized military expert is certain that they would be doomed to quick and crushing defeat. The U. S. and England have the greatest navies afloat. Russia has the largest and best equipped standing army in the world. The dictatorships have nothing to match these instruments of force.

The President's address has already achieved results. Japan has started a campaign to justify in this country its war in China. Mussolini is talking more softly than in his usual rant. Hitler speaks of peace. And the League of Nations, given new strength by Mr. Roosevelt's stand, is in a far better position to be a major influence than at any time in the past five years, and to resurrect some of its lost prestige.

Summing up, a union of the democracies is designed to achieve two ends. One, to maintain peace. Second, if that fails, to make sure that the ensuing war will be swift and ruinous to the dictatorships.

THINGS ONE REMEMBERS

by R. M. Hofer

Ever so often someone will cuss California for blowing its own horn too loudly. Then they will sit back and admire the state for the way it does things.

Maybe it's the sunshine, maybe it's the romance, maybe it's their dare-devil pioneer spirit. But whatever it is, they do things in a big way down there.

And now they're going to have another World's Fair in 1939, on "Treasure Island." There they go again, getting just the right name for a new island actually built to hold the fair.

As I gazed out of one of the most slightly windows in the world in a room in the Mark Hopkins hotel, overlooking the two greatest bridges in the world across San Francisco Bay, "Treasure Island," and an unsurpassed panorama of mountains and water and a whole fleet of battleships, I couldn't help but think, "What a bunch of gogetters you Californians are. One has to talk about you in order that the rest of the world may come and enjoy some of the things you have."

THE LOW DOWN
—from—
HICKORY GROVEI don't very often read enough to strain my eyes an awful lot, but I do try to kinda half-way keep up on politics. And the reason I like to read somethin'

now and then on politics, is because it is most always good comedy.

And if you like jokes, you will go a long ways to find places where they are better than in our Capital.

And you will read where one cabinet member is tellin' us to layoff plantin' so much—and solve the over-production farm problem. And another cabinet member he is goin' pell-mell here and there, promotin' dams for more water to give us new acres and bigger crops.

So it is hard to savvy, how any farmer can plant less and also plant more, at the same time, and it looks as if the fellers sponsorin' these great plants, they maybe never meant for anybody to take 'em too serious, in the first place. And anybody doin' so, it is quite a good joke on them—like lookin' under the shell and findin' no pea—and the other feller has our two-bits, or is maybe re-elected.

Yours, with the low-down,

VETERAN EXTENSION LEADER
TO ADDRESS FARM BUREAU

Arthur L. Deering, dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of Maine and director of the agricultural Extension Service, is to speak at the annual meeting of the Oxford County Farm Bureau at South Paris Nov. 5, County Agent R. F. Blanchard announces.

No man can more appropriately speak to and for Maine farm people, Mr. Blanchard said. He has risen through the ranks of the Extension Service, from county agent in 1912 to director in 1931.
During this period he was one of those principally responsible for developing the project type of organization now the standard for extension teaching.

His personal loyalty to Maine farm people, and the sincere objectives of the organization he leads, have never been questioned. Director Deering hopes that the four annual meetings at which he will speak this fall will give him the opportunity to renew his acquaintance with farm men and women who, with him, pioneered in extension teaching and farm bureau work 20 or 25 years ago.

He will speak of the part farm people have played in developing extension programs and policies, and more particularly of the pressing problems confronting agriculture in the state and nation.

On leave from his position as county agent leader in 1920, Director Deering assisted County Agent George A. Yeaton in organizing the Oxford County Farm Bureau. Mr.
Yeaton was the second Oxford County Agent. This county is celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary of extension work in 1937.

An important part of the annual meeting program will be exhibits made by the Farm Bureau groups in the county. Following the plan which has been used for the past few years, each community will be allowed the space of a card table in the hall to be used for setting up the exhibits. These exhibits will show some project work which has been carried by the group during the past year. This year, for the first time, a cash prize is being awarded for the best exhibit.

Enrollment in the University of Maine College of Agriculture is now 615, an increase of 87% over 1933 and of 11% over 1935.

Recent surveys show that 45.5% of Maine farms have electric service, an increase of 87% over 1933 and of 11% over 1935.

500 4-H BOYS AND GIRLS ATTEND COUNTY CONTEST

Five hundred 4-H boys and girls of Oxford County were present at the annual county contest at the Norway Opera House on Saturday, Oct. 23. Paul Wadsworth of Hiram, county club project leader, opened the program. Robert H. Dow, attorney, welcomed the boys and girls to Norway. Mrs. Addelynn Mann of Bryant Pond had charge of the program. Miss Evelyn Plummer, assistant state club leader, started the group singing with "The More We Get Together" and "Give Yourself a Pat on the Back." Mary Stearns of Hanover told about her trip to Springfield. The morning program included a guitar selection, play, impersonations, and songs. Forty-one seals of achievement were awarded the club leaders by Miss Plummer.

At noon the Norway Board of Trade furnished a free dinner to the club folks. The dinner was served by the Norway Grange women. The Portland Packing Co. donated two cases of corn for the chowder; the Norway Creamery donated 100 quarts of milk; and the H. P. Hood Co. donated one-third of the ice cream used for the dinner.

Following the afternoon program, county champions were announced by Doris Rosen, county club agent, as follows: Bean, Wilmer Stevens, Canton Point; Canning, Rachel Twitchell, Bryant Pond; Chick Raising, Eugene Lasselle, Norway; Cooking and Housekeeping, Rachel Twitchell, Bryant Pond; Dairy, Donald Cooper, Buckfield; Sweet Corn, Albert Adams, Canton Point; Garden, Clayton Ring, Bryant Pond; Pig, George Stearns, Hanover; Potato, Robert Agament, Wendell Twitchell, Bryllings, East Bethel; Poultry Management, Room Improvement, Barbara Cole, Bryant Pond, and Sewing, Mary Stearns, Hanover.

These boys and girls will attend the State Contest at Orono the last of December. Each of these members received a county championship certificate. Junior and young farmer champions also received certificates.

Cash prizes donated by the South Paris Savings Bank, the Casco Bank & Trust Co. the Norway Savings Bank, and the Norway National Bank were awarded to the highest ranking 4-H boys and girls by Misses Doris Rosen and Ruth Callaghan. Club pins were awarded to all boys and girls who had a rank of 70 or more and did not receive a cash prize, by the leaders' association and the Oxford County Farm Bureau.

Victoria of England

On the death of her uncle, William IV, on June 20, 1837, Victoria ascended the throne at the age of eighteen, and was crowned on June 28, 1838. She became engaged to her cousin, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, in October, 1839, and married him on February 10, 1840.

Her husband died in 1861 but she survived him for forty years, to January 22, 1901. She had four sons and five daughters and, by the time of her death, there were 37 great-grandchildren. Her reign was the longest in English history. Great jubilee processions and ceremonies marked the celebration of her golden anniversary in 1897. She was born in Kensington palace, London, on May 24, 1819, and died at Osborne, Isle of Wight, January 22, 1901, at the age of nearly eighty-two, outliving all previous British rulers.

LATE STAGE OF EROSION SHOWN BY DEEP GULLIES

"Don't wait for gullies to tell you that your farm topsoil is washing away," says W. B. Oliver, state coordinator for the Soil Conservation Service, in a word of caution to Maine farmers.

Too often, gullying means that erosion has reached the severe stage on Maine fields because on many types of soil, gullies do not start until "sheet" erosion has washed as much as 75% of the top soil off the fields.

Sheet erosion is hard to detect, but is responsible for the loss of several million tons of Maine topsoil every year.

Sheet erosion is a sneak thief, Oliver says, and works quietly, stealing the organic matter from the soil as it removes a layer of topsoil at a time. After a while, when the ability of the soil to absorb water has been cut down by loss of its humus, gullying gets a chance to start and show the farmer that he has a real conservation problem on his farm.

On the project and camp work areas at Presque Isle, technicians of the Soil Conservation Service say that sheet erosion on the majority of sloping cultivated fields has already removed from 25 to 75 percent of the topsoil. They also point out that farmers who have put soil conservation measures into effect in these areas in the past year, have reported noticeable decrease in the amount of soil that washed away during heavy rain.

Chapter One

"An operator from the wireless room of the British Foreign Office rushed excitedly into the office of the assistant to the Foreign Secretary. "Of all the luck!" he cried. "They've found Conway." "They what?" The assistant was unbelieving. "Here. Read this Conway's alive! Lord Gainsford's bringing him home." The assistant read the message quickly and hurried into the office of the Foreign Secretary. "Here's the most exciting news, sir. Conway's been found! A wireless just came in." The Foreign Secretary read the cable. "FOUND CONWAY IN SMALL CHINESE MISSION. LEAVING IMMEDIATELY S.S. MANCHURIA FOR LONDON." "I can scarcely believe it," the Foreign Secretary said. "After being missing for a year! Determine the exact location of the Manchuria at once. I'll send a convoy to pick him up. I must transmit this news to the Prime Minister."

Aboard the "Manchuria" en route to England Lord Gainsford was the center of a group of interested passengers in the ship's smoking room. "Look here, Gainsford," one of them asked, "doesn't he remember anything at all?" "Not a thing. He just wandered into this mission, they tell me. Had no idea where he came from — or how he got there. His memory was gone when he arrived." "How awful! Those things are usually caused by shock. Must have had some ghastly experience." "Very likely," Lord Gainsford agreed, "but what it was only Conway can tell us — that is, if he ever regains his memory."

At that moment Conway, well set up and extremely good looking despite his obviously makeshift dress, joined the group. Gainsford, who was the first to see him, suddenly remembered a description that his son a schoolmate of Conway's, had once given of him. "There's something Elizabethan about Conway — his casual versatility, his good looks, that effervescent combination of mental and physical activities. Our civilization doesn't often breed people like that nowadays."

Gainsford rose to greet him. "Hello, Bob," he said. "Know any of these men?" Conway's smiling eyes rapidly scanned the group at the table. "Should I?" he asked lightly. "Well, as a matter of social prestige, I doubt whether you should," said Lord Gainsford's jocular reply. "But somewhere in your lurid past you knew them all. This is Robertson — Henry Carstairs — Wynant — and Tom Meeker."

The men shook hands rather self-consciously while Conway smiled and said "Must seem strange to be introduced to someone you've known all your lives." The men agreed glumly and, after ordering a brandy from the steward, Conway turned to Gainsford. "Did you say these were friends of mine — or my pallbearers?" he asked. That helped to dispel some of the awkwardness of the meeting. "I hope you're not feeling sorry for me," Conway said. "Well, after all, it's not very pleasant."

"Save your sympathy," Conway interrupted. "I'm enjoying it tremendously. Not remembering is perfect — no disagreeable memories to haunt me — not a thing on my conscience. I'm just beginning to live. It's delightful!" "That's right," one of the group agreed. "Sometimes I wish I could shut my memory off!"

"Besides," Conway added. "Gainsford has been telling me all about myself and I've come to the conclusion that I was quite a fellow."

They all laughed. "Oh, I really mean it," Conway continued with a smile. "He's been flattering me no end. Listen to this: 'Celebrated soldier and diplomat who has accomplished more than any other individual in effecting and maintaining peace and goodwill in our Colonies in the East.' Stout fellow, what?"

Again they laughed and one of the men said, "I could tell you a few things about yourself, too." "Please don't," Conway urged in mock seriousness. "I might be disillusioned. Gainsford's only been telling me the nice things and I—" Conway's sentence was unfinished as he paused to listen to the piano music that floated in from the ship's music room. "What's that?" he asked.

"Sievking, the famous pianist. He's giving a concert," Gainsford explained. "It's about finished. Want to hear the rest of it?" Conway rose without a word and walked to the music room. The others, surprised, followed him. In the music room Sievking finished and bowed graciously acknowledgement to the applause. Some of his friends in the audience engaged the maestro in conversation and Conway, absorbed in profound thought, walked over to the piano. He sat down and began to play. Sievking, attracted by the music, turned and listened.

"When Conway was done Sievking walked over to the piano. "That's beautiful," he said. "What is it?" Conway turned puzzled eyes to the artist. "I don't know," he said hesitantly. "Yes I do, I remember now. It's a Chopin study." "Chopin?" Sievking smiled and shook his head. "Oh no, my dear boy. I know everything of Chopin's that exists — and I can assure you that he never wrote that."

"It is Chopin," Conway insisted. "I must admit it is amazingly in his style," Sievking conceded. "He might well have written it, but I just know he didn't. Can you show me the score in any of the editions?" Conway stared at him vaguely. "Oh yes, I remember," he said. "It was never published. I learned it from a man who was one of Chopin's pupils."

Sievking showed his incredulity. "Why, that's impossible," he said. "If a pupil of Chopin were alive today he'd have to be more than a hundred and twenty years old—" Conway looked up at him quickly. "What of it?" he asked sharply. Gainsford joined them and put an arm around Conway's shoulder. "What is it, Bob?" he asked softly. "I remember now — it's coming back to me. I'm beginning to remember!" Suddenly he jumped to his feet and grasped Gainsford's arms. "I've got to get off! I've got to leave this ship!" he cried and he rushed from the room.

Lord Gainsford found Conway in his stateroom feverishly packing his bag. "You must calm yourself, Bob," he urged. "What has happened?"

"The steward tells me we stop at Chiang-Chow within the hour. I must leave you then. It has all come back to me — Shangri-la — Shangri-la..." "What?"

"Nothing. You won't believe it, Gainsford — nobody will believe it. It's the weirdest story. Funny how that music brought it back to me." "You'll probably think I've gone mad when you've heard the story. Do you remember the bandit uprising in Baikul?"

"Yes, yes — of course. That was when you disappeared." "Right. I was the British Consul. Yes, that was it — that's where the whole thing started. My young brother, George, was with me. Remember him? The one I used to call the 'Freshman'?" Conway stopped and a look of pain darted across his face. "Oh my God!" he cried. "Poor George!"

"Perhaps you'd better not try to talk tonight," Gainsford suggested. "Oh no, no. I've got to tell it. I must leave you again. Besides, I must tell you the story before we get there." Conway lighted a cigarette and began his story again. Gainsford settled back and listened intently.

"The bandits were practically at our front door. Refugees were running around wildly. I got orders to evacuate all the white people from the town immediately. There was no ground transportation so I had to call for planes —"

Event Seen As Aid To Farmers

Quality of foods best in many years

Once again IGA Stores join hands with the farmers of the nation to bring to you, Mrs. American housewife, the choicest selection afforded by this Fall's rich harvest of foods.

This is a banner year for people who appreciate good foods and especially for the discriminating housewife who enjoys placing upon her table the best foods that the market affords—for farmers everywhere have reported exceptionally fine crops. And, as it has done in every year in the past, your IGA Store is offering you the cream of the canned foods harvest!

Behind the scenes of IGA's mammoth canned foods sale is an exciting story—the story of thousands of people working at top speed to bring canned foods to your pantry shelf.

Among the first in the field were IGA's food experts, inspecting the crops, contacting canning companies and arranging matters so that only the finest foodstuffs would be sold at your IGA Store. Later, as the crops began to mature, it became apparent that farmers were going to have more foods to sell than the Fall market can usually absorb.

At this point, IGA's merchandising experts entered the picture. It was decided that IGA Stores, which operate from coast to coast, would hold a mammoth canned foods sale. This move would greatly assist the farmers of the nation in disposing of surplus stocks, and at the same time would assure the housewives of the highest quality obtainable. (Probably there is a farmer or a canning plant right in your own community who is being greatly aided by this sale!)

Today that great harvest, which only a few weeks ago was in the farmers' fields, is on the shelves in your IGA Store. Be sure to take advantage of this great sale—and stock up now.—adv.

OXFORD COUNTY UNITED PARISH

Events for the week are piling up fast. It is almost impossible to keep up with them. Some of them are so good, that regardless of the fact that we might be kept going every night, we should not miss them. Your writer has just come away from a very small part of the Preaching Mission which is now going on in the state. This meeting was held at the Universalist Church of Norway and Rev. Alfred V. Bliss of Boston, Mass., was our speaker. We hope to make this Preaching Mission real to you in many other ways.

One event coming, and we note this first so that you will make a special note of it, is the Teaching Mission. This will be held one night each week for six weeks at the South Paris High School. The first session will be held on Tuesday evening. There will be classes for our church people as well as for our Church School leaders and teachers. You may make your choice from the following: "Guiding Primary and Kindergarten Children in Christian Growth" with Rev. Kirkpatrick, South Paris; "Guiding the Religious Growth of Juniors" with Rev. Walter Swank, North Waterford; "Guiding Youth's Approach to Religion" with Rev. James Burns, Hebron; "Christian Worship" with Rev. Holt, Portland; and "Personal Religious Living" with Rev. Rensel Colby, South Paris. The latter is especially for the adult group. These evenings will be great times of Christian fellowship and we should take advantage of them.

Hallowe'en is with us again! so, our young people of the Parish will have their Hallowe'en Party on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the North Waterford vestry. If you come, come masked as there will be special awards given. We invite all those of our High School group and beyond. Surprises and spooks await you.

The first meeting of the Crooked River Outing Club will be held on next Monday evening at the North Waterford vestry at 7:30 o'clock. Pass this word along, and if you are interested in Winter Sports bring your ideas and come along.

The Men's Club of Waterford are going to entertain the Ladies at their next meeting. When? Why on Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Wilkins House. Mrs. Marguerite McQuaide, Field Worker of the American Red Cross for the State of Maine is going to speak to us. A special committee has been appointed to make the plans for the evening. We extend an invitation to all the Ladies of Waterford to meet with us then.

No, we have not overlooked our Circle Suppers for the week. They come on Thursday and Friday though. You may go to East Stoneham on Thursday evening and then to Center Lovell on Friday.

We are very glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Bull back with us in the Parish again after their visit to Presque Isle where Mr. Bull has been taking an active part in the State Preaching Mission.
